As lifespans continue to increase across the globe, countries must look to develop policies and structures that promote the active engagement and health of their aging populations. This three-day summit draws aging experts from around the world for the cross-sector sharing of ideas among scientists, policy makers, and industry, to help countries prepare for the growth and opportunities of their aging populations.

Speakers include:

Opening Keynote

Babatunde Osotimehin
Executive Director, United Nations Population Fund and Under-Secretary-General, United Nations

Linda P. Fried
Dean, Columbia University, Mailman School of Public Health

John Beard
Director, World Health Organization, Dept. of Ageing and Life Course

Wen Chen
Dean, Fudan University, School of Public Health

Eileen Burns
President-Elect, British Geriatrics Society

Maurizio Bussolo
Lead Economist, World Bank

David Chen
Vice President, Microsoft

Wu Fan
Director, Shanghai Center for Disease Control & Prevention

Terry Fulmer
President, Hartford Foundation

Yvonne Li
CEO, International China Ageing Industry Association

Paul McGann
Deputy Chief Medical Officer, Medicare & Medicaid Services

Du Peng
Director, Institute of Gerontology, Renmin University

Atsushi Seike
President, Keio University

Yushao Wu
Vice President, China National Committee on Aging

Robert Xiao
CEO, Perfect World

Derek Yach
Senior Vice President, Vitality Group

October 17-19, 2016, Shanghai, China
This conference is endorsed by numerous global institutions, including:

The British National Health Service’s Depts.

of Aging and Societal Care

The Chinese National Aging Office

The China Research Center on Aging

The Shanghai Research Center on Aging

The Vitality Institute

The World Health Organization

The WHO’s Dept. of Ageing and Life Course

Official program and website available May 2016

ChinaAging2016@cumc.columbia.edu