

Tai-Tsang Chen, MS '99, MPH '04, PhD '06

Term: 2014-Present

Dr. Chen is a clinical trial researcher who specializes in biostatistics. Dr. Chen's current research interests include innovative clinical trial designs, longitudinal data analysis and causal inference in cancer studies. Currently he is holding the position of Director at the Department of Global Biometric Sciences in Oncology and Hematology at Bristol-Myers Squibb Company. Dr. Chen has contributed to the global approvals of cancer treatments in various disease indications, including lung cancer, breast cancer, colorectal cancer and leukemia. He currently the lead statistician of a melanoma project.

is

Dr. Chen also served as the President of the American Statistical Association (ASA) Connecticut Chapter. In addition, he was an active member in the Pharmaceutical Research and Manufacturers of America (PhRMA) Progression-Free Survival Working Group. Prior to working in the pharmaceutical industry, Dr. Chen was trained as a clinical psychologist and had worked in a psychiatric institute in Taiwan. He is currently teaching Pharmaceutical Statistics at the Department of Biostatistics.